

A. H. 112

University of Southern California
College of Music

WESLEY AVENUE AND WEST THIRTY FIFTH PLACE
Los Angeles, California

April, 28th, 1911.

Mr. Inyat Khan,
Los Angeles, California.

Dear Sir:

The lecture and demonstration you gave before the University yesterday was very interesting and instructive. The music was, of course, strange and at times almost amusing to Western ears; but the respectful attention accorded was all the more an evidence of the genuine interest and enjoyment of the audience. We shall certainly feel a greater respect for the musician of India who must understand five hundred different scales and five hundred different rhythms beside being an improviser of both words and music before he can be called an expert.

Wishing you every success,

Very cordially,

W. F. Skeele