Dear Sir,

I cannot thank you enough for the great great pleasure you gave us all the other evening. All my friends were delighted, I have not yet received copies of my last book but as soon as my publisher sends them to me, I shall ask you to accept one, hoping I may some day, be able to offer you a more fitting token of gratitude.

When I am not so busy I shall write to you & we will arrange for some sittings for your portrait which I should be delighted to paint since you are so kind as to be willing to spare me a little of your time to sit.

With again a thousand thanks & kindest regards from my wife & myself
yours very sincerely.

Edmund Selous
