

INAYAT KHAN R. PATHAN, ESQUIRE,
PROFESSOR OF MUSIC OF BARADA.

Dear Sir,

We the members of the Bhowanipore Sangit Sammilani are most proud and happy to accord a most hearty welcome to you in our midst.

We find in you the ardent student of music and the most original exponent of the Indian Notation System devised by your renowned ancestor Professor Moula Bux and we congratulate you most sincerely in the well-merited recognition of your brilliant genius by His Highness the Nizam Sircar and other Potentates of India.

We have watched with keen interest your unceasing efforts in the execution of the monumental work in the field of scientific music commenced by your renowned ancestor Professor Moula Bux as evidenced by the numerous musical treatises that are your handi work - and we take this opportunity to express our sincere appreciation of your successful attempt in devising a uniform system of Notation throughout India.

We have thus learnt to look upon you as the morning star of Indian Musical Revival and in placing in your hand this small token - which we beg you to accept - of this evening passed among your brethern here, we feel most keenly the unworthiness of this humble offering to one whom Kings and Princes have delighted to honour.

May God grant you long and glorious years to come

May He spare you long in the livery of Goddess Beenapani.

14 February 1909.
Bhowanipore,
Sangit Sammilani,

Your Well-Wishers,

Abul Kalam Ahsan
